National Credit. It is almost certain that the present Congress will provide for refunding in 3 per cent. bonds so much of the public debt as is redecinable during the present year. The sum is over $600,000. A question has been raised as to the ability of the United States to refund this debt at so low a rate of interest. It is said that the three per cents of no country in the world, except England and Holiand, sell at par, and hence it is argued that those of the United States cannot be expected to sell at that price. A Chicago paper says that the German 4 per cents sell at 1001; the Bayarian 4 per cents a little lower; the Saxon a little higher; the Austrian at 755; the Belgian at 1051; and the Swedish at 974; that the French 5's sell at 1194; the French 3's at 854; and that the Italian 5's sell at 87$, and the Russian 5's at 724. These are significant figures.

the collections of the present year, up to October 1st, amounted on manufactured tobacco alone to $1.574.436.68, and on cigars and cigarettes to $91,034.25. The number of persons employed in these several establishments last year. The British 3's sell now at a premium, and the Government desires to reduce its rate of interest to 24 per cent. We in this country hold that our national bonds ought to sell as high as those of any other country. And they certainly do sell higher than the bonds of any other country in the world except Great Britain and Holland.

We judge that the form of government of a country has nothing to do with its credit in the money markets of the world.

But there must be some reason why the eredit of Great Britain seems to be better than that of the United States. We all know one fact which may shed some light upon the subject-namely, that our Government's bonds having a long time to run sell higher than those which are redeemable much sooner. United States 45's sell lower now than United States 4's only because the former are redeemable ten years bence, and the latter not for many years. Given, therefore, a stable and honest governmentone in which capitalists have full confidence-and its bonds will sell higher or lower in proportion as its bonds bave a longer or a shorter time to run before they can be called in.

In this last fact is to be found, we suspect, the real reason why British 3 per cents sell above par, whilst a question is raised as to the ability of the United States to sell a 3 per cent, bond at par. Our bonds are all redeemable on and after a certain fixed time. Most of the debt of Great Britain, on the contrary, is in the form of annuities. "Strictly speaking," says Spor-FORD, basing his remarks upon British authorities, "the Government of Great Britain has no bonded debt. It is all a funded debt; and the practice of the Government is to sell annuities; that is, upon paying £100 into the treasury the subscriber receives a government promise to pay so much per annum during a certain time, but without any promise to return the sum paid in. The 3 per cent. consolidated annuities, familiarly known as ' consols,' practically make the funded debt of Great Britain consist of never-ending annuities unless redeemed at the option of the Government. It has never been the British practice to sell the Government bonds payable at a certain time, or option, and bearing a certain in. terest, at a fixed price; or to the highest bidder, as in France and the United States." As there is no probability, and indeed hardly a possibility, that the British Government will ever be able to pay its debt, the annuities it provides for may well be styled "never-ending annuities"; they sell higher than bonds | Southern Pulpit, conducted by Rev. He as made a complete survey of the field by actual visitation and knows exactly whereof he speaks: I must say something about the cultiva-tion of the Burley tobacco, which brings in the market about twice as much per pound as our best. This is a sprout which originated in Brown county, Ohio, etween 1860 and 1870. It has few qualfties that we would call good. It has not enough gum to make it supple. It is a deep drinker. It is probably the tobacco grown. We would call it But our opinions do not coincide with the opinions of the tobacco-consuming people of America. Since 1872, at which time it began to be used for making plug tobacco (before used for cutting), it has wellingh mide the conquest of the United Bistes. The sweet-chew of Missouri, the sun-cured of Virginia, and indeed all the sun-cured of virginia virg tanceured of virginia, and indeed an interest of plug-tanceure, have been dethroned by this to-hacoo king of the Ohio Valley. And still its conquests spread. Engiand wants it; conquests spread. England wants to many wants it; France would take it; the American people have plainly said have not produced enough yet for the direments of our manufacturers, and if a wast it you must pay for it.

The points I wish to make are these:

taxes. The section was settled by poor white people, who managed to make a sean ty living by cultivating the creek bottom in corn and other grain, very little cotton for the Buriey tobacco abroad, if we should grow it, as we have now for our beavy leaf. 2. We shall have a market at home for all we can raise, probably for many years to except for home consumption—being raised The construction of the Air-Line railroad 3. It will lead to the establishment of to which passes through that section, was fol-owed by the introduction of commercial nanures, and now it is the very best and bacco manufactories in our midst that would stimulate and develop our agricultu-ral interests more rapidly than any other thing. One or two words about Richmond, most prosperous portion of South Carolina. I was through that section in October last, and some of the finest fields of cotton I have When the war ended the sun never shone upon a people so completely prostrated as the citizens of Richmond. They had no morey, they had no credit, their property was nigh destroyed. The future was gilded with scarcely a single ray of hope. But the ever seen were there. The whole country was transformed from a miserably poor and half starved to prosperous condition.

The use of commercial manures not only forces the earlier maturing of the crop, as stated by your correspondent, but it im-proves the staple. A few years since the markets quoted Gulf cottons $\frac{1}{2}c.$ per pound higher than "upfands." Now it is only $\frac{1}{2}c.$ adomitable manhood of that sturdy race which could sacrifice everything for princi-ple arose above all calamities and all misfortunes. Discarding the errors of the past, they adopted the habits which induce prosperity in the present. There was not a tobacco manufactory in Richmond in 1866. The amount in the whole district collected by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for that year was $2.841. I restord and really spinners prefer them at same price for which the staple is, as long as it is much finer than the cottons grown on the rich lands of the Southwest.

Much more might be said upon this subject to show the sound policy of growing more cotton in Virginia, and I may recur to GEORGIA.

The time was when it would not pay to grow cotton except on rich lands, and al-though a good deal of cotton has been raised on the poor lands of North Georgia, South Carolina, and North Carolina, the cultivation was done by the poor white population of those sections, and never yielded, with rare exceptions, but a bare living to the cultivators.
